Airport Showcases Features to Business Aviators

FREDERICK, MD – Oct. 15, 2018: The Frederick Municipal Airport (FDK) will exhibit at the 2018 NBAA-BACE Conference, a premier meeting place for the business aviation community.

The event, hosted by the National Business Aviation Association, Oct. 16-18, brings together key aviation contacts from around the world, including current and prospective business aircraft owners, manufacturers, and customers.

Airport and Economic Development staff from The City of Frederick will showcase the airport's competitive amenities and proximity to major markets as leading reasons for aircraft owners and business travelers to choose FDK, instead of busier and costlier commercial service airports in the region. The airport aims to leverage their attendance at the conference to increase business aviation operations.

The exhibition at the NBAA-BACE conference will also facilitate the promotion of several unique hangar development sites currently available at the airport. These rare built-to-suit opportunities are served with key utility infrastructure and available at competitive rates with flexible lease terms. The parcels additionally fall within a federally designated Opportunity Zone – offering significant tax incentive potential to eligible investors.

The 2018 NBAA-BACE conference will take place at the Orange County Convention Center in Orlando, Fla. For additional details about the NBAA BACE conference, visit the event website at <https://www.nbaa.org/events/bace/2018/general-information/>.
