NEWS RELEASE

App Upgrade Expands Notification Options

FREDERICK, MD – June 20, 2018: The City of Frederick is pleased to announce a new upgrade to the iSpire App, released today to the public.

This upgrade features a complete redesign of the free app, now enabling “push notifications” from the City. The app, which was first released in 2014, continues to allow citizens to communicate with officials, report problems, watch meetings, find parking, and sign up for classes. Now, the City will be able to send important messages to those who have the app.

The app was developed in-house by the Technology Department. Today’s release is for Apple users, and the android release will come in the next month.

Mayor Michael O’Connor welcomed the app’s new features as it supports his commitment to better connect citizens with the City and their government.

“This latest version of the iSpire app continues to have all the features citizens routinely use to interact with the City,” O’Connor said. “Adding a way to communicate with residents through the app increases opportunities for citizen engagement.”

Get the free app from the Apple App Store, search iSpire; or download it here:
